State law (Wis. Stat. §§ 111.70(4)(cg)1 and cm(1)) requires that a public sector employer of transit or general employees or the union representing such employees notify the Commission when it has asked the other party to begin negotiations. Sections 111.77(1)(c) and (2) of the Wisconsin Statutes, require that a municipal employer of public safety employees (except the City of Milwaukee Police) or the union representing such employees notify the Commission of a bargaining dispute.

Each case processed by the Commission is opened by employer name and case type (i. e., annual certification election, regular election/unit clarification, arbitration, complaint, declaratory ruling, fact finding, impartial hearing officer, interest arbitration, labor management cooperation, mediation, and personnel appeal) and a docket sheet is created providing pertinent information relative to each case.

Retention Justification: Once a case file is destroyed or sent to the State Record Center or Wisconsin Historical Society, the docket sheet is the only permanent record of a case and becomes the main research tool for Commission staff, employers, labor organizations, and the public. Therefore, for research and historical purposes, the docket sheets are kept forever at the Commission offices.
